Feral Swine: A Growing Threat

Informational Open House Meeting/Webinar

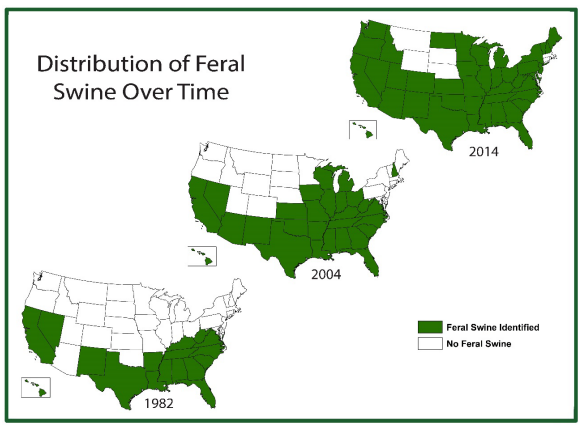
January 4, 2018
4:00 pm - 6:00 pm
Meeting Room # 259
1111Washington St SE
Olympia, WA 98504

You are cordially invited to join us at the Washington State Natural Resources Building Room # 259 (1111 Washinton St SE, Olympia, WA 98501) from 4:00 p.m. to 6:00 p.m. on January 4, 2018 to learn about feral swine identification, impacts, and the imminent threat to Washington State's agriculture, livestock health, and natural resources.

You may also participate in this event remotely via GoToWebinar. Visit http://bit.ly/2jMKY0A today to register. If this is your first GoToWebinar, visit link.gotomeeting.com/system-check to check your connection and system settings.

Hear from experts about feral swine damage and impacts to crops, wildlife, and water quality, and learn about disease threats to livestock. The Washington Invasive Species Council will also discuss what Washington is doing to prevent establishment of this new threat.

Questions? Email invasivespecies@rco.wa.gov or call 360-902-3088.

This open house is hosted by the Washington Invasive Species Council, Washington State Department of Agriculture, and U.S. Department of Agriculture Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, in partnership with AgForestry Leadership Program Class 39 students.


Wildlife and landscape damage caused by feral swine.